Q1: How do you perceive the benefits of fast-growing languages compared to more established ones?
○ Fast-growing languages offer significant advantages and improvements.
○ Fast-growing languages have some benefits, but established languages still hold their value.
○ I don't see much difference or benefit in fast-growing languages compared to established ones.
○ I have not worked with any of mentioned fast growing languages.

Q2: What factors influence your decision to adopt or learn a fast-growing language?
○ The language's features and capabilities.
○ The popularity and community support behind the language.
○ Job market demands and career opportunities.
○ Other…< Open ended>

Q3: How do you manage the learning curve associated with fast-growing languages?
○ I actively dedicate time and effort to learn and stay updated.
○ I prefer to wait until a language stabilises before investing time in learning it.
○ I rely on existing knowledge and experience to quickly adapt to new languages.
○ I find the learning curve challenging and sometimes discouraging.
○ Other…< Open ended>

Q4: How do you perceive the sustainability and long-term viability of fast-growing languages?
○ Fast-growing languages have a bright future and will become mainstream.
○ It's difficult to predict their sustainability; some may fade while others will thrive.
○ I have concerns about the long-term viability of fast-growing languages.
○ Other…< Open ended>

Q5: What resources or strategies do you find most helpful for learning and staying updated on fast-growing languages?
○ Online tutorials, documentation, and official language resources.
○ Books and printed materials.
○ Online communities and forums.
○ Conferences and workshops.
○ Other…< Open ended>

Q6: In your experience, are new developers welcomed in contributing to GitHub projects built using fast-growing languages?
○ Yes, new developers are warmly welcomed and encouraged to contribute.
○ It varies, some projects are more welcoming than others.
○ No, new developers often face challenges in contributing to such projects.
○ I'm not aware

Q7: Which emotion do you associate when working (or when you think of working) with fast-growing languages?
○ joy
○ surprise
○ sadness
○ anger
○ fear
○ neutral

Q8: Now that you know about the list of fast-growing languages, are you willing to try, understand, and explore what they offer and why they are, in fact, fast-growing?
○ Yes, I'm eager to explore and understand them.
○ I'm somewhat interested, but it depends on the specific language.
○ No, I prefer to focus on my current expertise and not invest time in new languages.
○ Other…< Open ended>